“ To have the chance to study with people in the University who are writing and publishing at the cutting edge of their subject has been incredible.”

Paul Tabraham, former student

“ I appreciated being part of the life of the Wesley House community – particularly worship with students and staff as well as the choral worship of places like King’s and St John’s.”

Rob Hufton, former sabbatical visitor

Wesley House invites MDiv and BA Theology and Religious Studies students to study with us in the historic university city of Cambridge.

Choose to come either from September to December or from January to June. Your programme of study will be tailored to your own particular MDiv or BA degree requirements and by agreement with your home institution may be credited towards your degree.

About Wesley House

Wesley House is a community of Methodist scholars and students at the heart of the University city of Cambridge. Since 1921 it has been a gateway for students in the Wesleyan tradition into the excellent resources for learning in the University of Cambridge, and since 1972, to the shared resources of the globally significant Cambridge Theological Federation (a unique collaboration between Anglican, Reformed, Catholic, Orthodox and Methodist communities of prayer and study).

About us

We are a small community of up to 30 students and residential staff committed to living, praying and studying together in our newly refurbished original premises at the heart of the city. Community life at Wesley House revolves around daily prayers in the college chapel, a weekly service of Holy Communion, shared meal and seminar.

About you

To join us you will need to be an MDiv student or Theology/ Religious Studies BA student sympathetic to the Wesleyan tradition and be able to commit to the discipline of daily prayer and intentional Christian community.
